

Cindy W. Christian, M.D. holds Anthony A. Latini endowed Chair in the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect at The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia (CHOP). She is a Professor of Pediatrics at the Perelman School of Medicine at The University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Christian serves as Assistant Dean for Community Engagement and the Director of Interprofessional Education at the Perelman School of Medicine. Dr. Christian graduated from the Albany Medical College and completed her pediatric residency and child abuse pediatrics fellowship at The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, where she has spent her 39-year career. For more than two decades, she directed the child protection program at CHOP. She is a faculty director of the Field Center for Children's Policy, Practice and Research at The University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Christian is a past Chair of the American Academy of Pediatrics Committee on Child Abuse and Neglect, and past chair of the sub-board on Child Abuse and Neglect for the American Board of Pediatrics. She served as the first President of the International Ray E. Helfer Society. From 2010-2015, Dr. Christian served as the first medical director for the Philadelphia Department of Human Services, leading the development of policies and strategies to improve the health of Philadelphia's dependent children. Dr. Christian has written and lectured extensively on topics related to all forms of child maltreatment and has worked both nationally and internationally to improve the recognition, evaluation, care and protection of abused and neglected children.

OR